PRESIDENT POINCARÉ SENDS A MESSAGE OF APPRECIATION

Grateful for Practical Sympathy Shown By Americans in France's Hour of Trial.

BY RICHARD HARDING DAVIS.

(Copyright, 1915.)

PARIS, November 6.—President Poincaré has given me permission to convey a message to the American people. It is a message of good will. It recognizes and appreciates the sympathy shown to France in her present fight for liberty and civilization by those Americans who remember that when we fought for our liberty France was not neutral, but sent us La Fayette and Rochambeau, ships and soldiers. It is a message of thanks from the distinguished President of the French Republic to those Americans who, not being neutral, find it easier to be grateful. It was my good fortune to be presented by Paul Benazet, a close personal friend of the president and both an officer of the army and a deputy. As a deputy before the war he helped largely in passing the bills that called for three years of military service and for heavier artillery. As an officer he won the Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre. Besides being a brilliant writer, M. Benazet also is an accomplished linguist, and as President Poincaré does not express himself readily in English and as my French is better suited to restaurants than palaces, he acted as my interpreter.

Trip Through the Elysee.

The arrival of important visitors—M. Cambon, the former ambassador to the United States, and the new prime minister, M. Briand—delayed our reception, and while we waited we were escorted through the official rooms of the Elysee. It was a half hour of most fascinating interest, not only because the vast salons were filled with what in art is most beautiful, but because we were brought back to the ghosts of other days.

What we actually saw were the best of Gobelin tapestries, the best of Sevres china, the best of French paintings. We walked on silken carpets bearing the fleur de lys of Henry III. We sat on sofas of embroidery and fine as engravings and as rich in color as a painting by Morland. The bright October sunshine illuminated the ornate, the brass of the first empire, gilt eagles, crowns, cupids and the only letter of the alphabet that always suggests a name.

Those whom we brought back to the rooms in which once lived, planned and plotted were the ghosts of Mme. de Pompadour, Louis Quinze, Murat, Napoleon I and Napoleon III. We could imagine the great emperor standing with his hands clasped behind him in front of the marble fireplace, his figure reflected in the full-length mirror, his features in the gold looking down at him from the walls and ceilings. We intruded even into the little room opening on the rose garden where for hours he would pace the floor.

War Trappings Absent.

But perhaps what was of greatest interest was the remarkable adjustment of these surroundings, royal and imperial, to the simple and dignified needs of a republic. France is a military nation and at war, but the evidences of militarism were entirely absent. Our own White House is not more barren of uniforms, our own President from guards of honor.

Letter From Col. Roosevelt.

The president rose, and on leaving I presented a letter for him from ex-President Roosevelt. It was explained that this was the second for him I had had from Col. Roosevelt, but that when I was a prisoner of the Germans I had judged it wise to swallow the first one, and that he had requested Col. Roosevelt to write the second one on this paper. The president smiled and passed the letter critically between his thumb and forefinger. "This one," he said, "is quite digestible."

Then he gave me a message to Col. Roosevelt and, with the unconcernedness of real courtesy, himself opened the door for us.

I carried away the impression of a kind and distinguished gentleman, who, in the midst of the greatest crisis in our history, could find time to dictate a message of appreciation to a correspondent guiltily conscious that he had wasted the precious moment of the president's time. "This one," he said, "is quite digestible."

PLANS NOW BEING STUDIED TO GAIN LASTING PEACE

Committee of Congress Given Cordial Reception in Italy—Will Not Meddle in Pouprieries.

BERN, Switzerland, via Paris, November 6.—A committee of the congress founded to study the basis of lasting peace announces that the delegation sent to Italy to establish relations with professors of law and other prominent people were given a cordial reception. They learned for a certainty that Italians would participate in some way in the congress.

The delegates in particular succeeded in securing a number of eminent people that the congress is not a manifestation in favor of a cessation of hostilities and has no intention of meddling in the pouprieries that precede the list of adhesions in other countries is said to be growing rapidly and there is every prospect that the congress will succeed in the task of defining fully the problems which should be determined by the future treaty of peace.

SUNDAY CLOSING LAW VOID.

Oregon Court Holds It to Be Religious Discrimination.

PORTLAND, Ore., November 6.—Oregon's Sunday closing law, which has been on the statutes many years, but which no attempt has been made to enforce until a month ago, was declared invalid by the state district court here today.

Dan Kellaher, groceryman, charged with violating the law, was found not guilty. The law was declared invalid on the grounds that it specified that certain lines of business should not be conducted on the "Lord's day." The injunction held this to be religious discrimination.

One got the impression that he was entering the house of a private gentleman, a gentleman of great taste and a great nation.

We passed at last through four rooms, in which were the secretaries of the president. As we passed, the major secretaries spoke our names, and the different gentlemen half rose and bowed. It was all so quiet, so calm, so free from telephones and typewriters that you felt that by mistake you had been ushered into the library of a student or a cabinet minister. Then in the fourth room was the president. Without this room we were presented to M. Salisore, the personal secretary of the president, and without further ceremony M. Benazet opened the door, and in the smallest room of all introduced me to M. Poincaré. His portraits have rendered his features familiar, but they do not give sufficiently the impression I received of kindness, firmness and great dignity.

He returned to his desk and spoke in a low voice of peculiar charm. As though the better to have the stranger understand, he spoke slowly, selecting his words.

Effective American Sympathy.

"I have a great admiration," he said, "for the effectiveness with which Americans have shown their sympathy with France. They have sent doctors, nurses and volunteers to drive the ambulance to carry the wounded. I have visited the hospitals at Neuilly and other places. They are admirable. The one at Neuilly was formerly a college, but with ingenuity they have converted it into a hospital, most complete and most valuable. The American colony in Paris has shown a friendship we greatly appreciate. Your ambassador I have met several times. Our relations are most pleasant and most sympathetic." I asked if I might repeat what he had said. The president gave his assent, and after a pause he said, now he was to be quoted, he wished to emphasize what he had said, continued: "My wife, who distributes articles of comfort, sent to the wounded and to families in need, tells me that Americans are among the most generous contributors. Many articles come anonymously, money, clothing and layettes for the soldiers. We recognize and appreciate the manner in which, while preserving a strict neutrality, your countrymen and women have shown their sympathy."

Letter From Col. Roosevelt.

The president rose, and on leaving I presented a letter for him from ex-President Roosevelt. It was explained that this was the second for him I had had from Col. Roosevelt, but that when I was a prisoner of the Germans I had judged it wise to swallow the first one, and that he had requested Col. Roosevelt to write the second one on this paper. The president smiled and passed the letter critically between his thumb and forefinger. "This one," he said, "is quite digestible."

Then he gave me a message to Col. Roosevelt and, with the unconcernedness of real courtesy, himself opened the door for us.

I carried away the impression of a kind and distinguished gentleman, who, in the midst of the greatest crisis in our history, could find time to dictate a message of appreciation to a correspondent guiltily conscious that he had wasted the precious moment of the president's time. "This one," he said, "is quite digestible."

ARMY—NAVY.

FIRE LOSS $50,000.

Block of Buildings on Public Square, Albany, Ky., Destroyed.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., November 6.—Fire between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning destroyed the north side of the public square of Albany, Ky., except one bank building, according to a dispatch from Byrdtown, Tenn.

The loss was $50,000; insurance, $9,000. The loss included post office, a sanatorium, the Bank of Albany, a livery barn and seven horses and the Smith & Dillon building and stock.

The origin is unknown, but incendiarism is suspected.

TEST OF BIG BATTLESHIP.

Acceptance Trials of the Nevada Are Under Way.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., November 6.—The acceptance trials of the battleship Nevada, which were interrupted on account of the gale and rough seas off Cape Cod, were resumed tonight, when the dreadnaught started on a run of twenty-four hours at ten knots' speed as a part of her fuel economy trial.

The wind moderated in violence late in the day, and by sunset conditions were regarded as fairly suitable for the test.

HELENA, MD., VICTIM HELPED WONDERFULLY

F. E. Reeder Thinks Remedy Is Worth Weight in Gold.

F. E. Reeder of Helena, Md., took May's Wonderful Remedy for indigestion and stomach trouble. He had tried many remedies and was skeptical. The very first dose of this treatment convinced him.

The results were astonishing. Mr. Reeder says: "My remedy has helped me wonderfully. I have told a lot of people about your medicine and how it has helped me. It is worth its weight in gold. I will never be without it in my home."

May's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal troubles, no matter how much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee. If not satisfactory, money will be returned. Advertisement.
